

The Immense Popularity of GREY In French Spring Millinery

A SILVERLY glamour is cast over Spring Millinery Fashions by the introduction of the new soft grey tones, which are in appealing contrast to the bright colors of the passing season.

Demure little turbans of grey Georgette crepe, the new wide-brimmed hats of grey sipper and novelty braids, models of lustreless silk in aluminum, moonstone and cloud shades—these are among the new arrivals.

Prices $10.00 to $25.00

Spring Hats Exceptionally Attractive At $4.45 and $5.75

The styles include all the new versions of small, medium and large-brimmed hats, in fancy straws and combinations of satin and straws.

Run of Sockeye on Fraser Will Be Lean One, Says Fisheries Commissioner

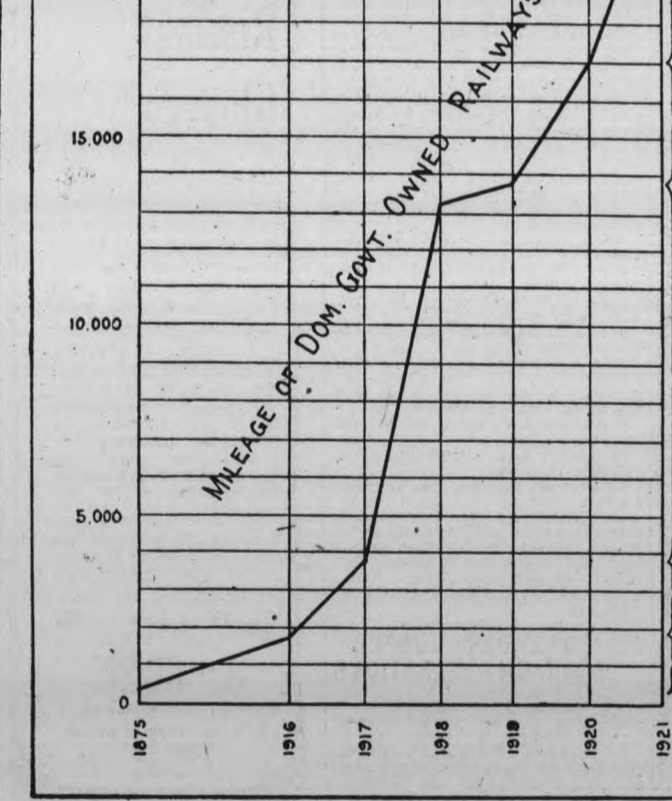

Hon. Wm. Sloan, as Commissioner of Fisheries for the Province, has just issued for publication a report made to him by Dr. C. H. Gilbert, of Stanford University, on the run of sockeye salmon to the Fraser River in 1920 that will be of great interest to all engaged in that industry because of its relation to the run that may be expected in that river this year.

Dr. Gilbert, who has been retained by the Provincial Fisheries Department since 1912 for the scientific study of the runs of salmon to British Columbia waters, is the leading authority on the life of Pacific salmon. From an annual study of the scales of a large series of sockeye taken from the catch made in each of B. C.'s principal salmon streams since 1911, Dr. Gilbert has been enabled to segregate the age groups of the runs to the various rivers and determine the years in which they were hatched. While the runs of sockeye to the Fraser have been shown to consist predominantly of four-year-old fish, it has also been shown that in the season immediately preceding the year of "the big run" to that river the run was always made conspicuous by the occurrence of large numbers of individuals which were but three years old, termed grise, which constituted a class apart from the main body of the run and which rarely found accompanying the runs to the Fraser in other years.

These grise were all males, undersized, pale in color of flesh and poor in oil, and were hatched from the eggs deposited in the season which produced the big run of the following year. Being of inferior grade to the four-year-old fish, most canners, being jealous of the quality of their pack, put up the grise separately and were thus in a position to compare their abundance in the year of their occurrence with that of four, or eight, or twelve years previous. From such observation it came to be believed that whenever the number of grise was relatively large, the big year which followed would be correspondingly increased in comparison with other big years. The direct relation between the two runs has been made fully manifest by Dr. Gilbert's investigations. He demonstrated that whereas the usual run of sockeye to the Fraser consisted of four-year-old fish, the grise were but three years old, and made their appearance in the run one year earlier than the four year fish, which resulted from the same spawning. Consequently, if the spawning of the previous big year had been exceptionally productive, it would result in an exceptionally large run of grise three years afterwards, and also in an exceptionally large run of four-year-old fish in the big run of the following year.

Effect of 1909. It has been shown that the catch of 1912, which produced a pack of 2,400,000 cases of sockeye, was the result of the abundant seeding of the up-river spawning beds in 1909. The catch of 1917, which came from the depleted spawning in 1913, produced a pack of but 560,000 cases. Notwithstanding that the catch of 1917 was but 20 per cent. of that of the previous big year, and that the spawning beds in 1917 were not as well seeded as in 1913, some doubt has been expressed as to the permanent effect of the blockade on the runs in the big year. Some have even advanced the opinion that the blockade of 1913 was effaced in 1917, and could not affect future runs, and that the catch in 1921 would approximately equal that of the big years 1909 and 1913, and they advanced that opinion notwithstanding that the reports of the Provincial Department showed that the spawning beds in 1917 were even less abundantly seeded than in 1913, the year of the disastrous blockade. Dr. Gilbert, in his present report, reviews the evidence in the case, and adds very materially to the forecasts issued by the department. He shows that the catch of 1912, the year before the record run of 1913, contained 20 per cent. of grise; that the catch in 1916 contained less than one-fourth of that number, and that the catch in the following year was but one-fifth of that of 1913.

Significant Index. In commenting on Dr. Gilbert's report Mr. Sloan said: "The relation, therefore, of the proportion of grise found in the catch of the year immediately preceding the big year runs shown by Dr. Gilbert, appears to have been a significant and reliable index of the size of the run in that year. That being so, the fact that in the catch of 1920 but three grise were found in the nineteen hundred and fifty specimens examined by him, wholly agrees with the conclusion derived from the department reports of the conditions of the up-river spawning beds of the Fraser in 1917. The reports of that year, and Dr. Gilbert's present paper forces me to the conclusion that the run of sockeye to the Fraser this year will as he concludes, range itself definitely with the lean years on that river, and that the former big years of the Fraser must now be regarded wholly a thing of the past."

HOW CANADIAN NATIONAL AND GRAND TRUNK GREW FAMOUS ENGINEER WAS TRUE PROPHET

Chart Gives Graphic Illustration of Development

When the Grand Trunk Railway system is incorporated in the Canadian National Railways, the mileage of Government-owned railways in Canada will be 23,375 miles; comprising more than fifty per cent. of the railway mileage in Canada.

Writing in 1876, the preface to his history of the Intercolonial, Sir Sandford Fleming said: "The Intercolonial Railway is national in its objects and character." This great railway engineer was, at the time, engineer-in-chief of the Newfoundland, Intercolonial, and Canadian Pacific Railways, the latter then being proposed as a Government undertaking, and it is to this he refers in the last sentence of the preface when he states that the completion of the work "realizes the national aspirations of half a century, by bringing within a few hours, the old fortress of Halifax and the older citadel of Quebec, and which must form an important section of the railway, destined, ere long, to extend from East to West through the entire Dominion."

WAGE RISE ABSORBS RATE INCREASES

The rate increases granted by the Railroad Board in Canada not being up to the scale that was requested by the railways, and coming as they did with a business decline, have not produced sufficient additional revenue to offset the step-up in expenses which wage increases and attendant rise in other costs has placed on the railways during the year. Under the circumstances, the only course for the management to pursue, is to reduce operating expenses to the lowest possible notch consistent with safe operation and ordinations are apt to be over-estimated by the public, who, seeing two ticket offices combined in one, at once jump to the conclusion that certain operating expenses are being cut in half. Unfortunately, the effect of such consolidation is limited to a very small percentage of the total operating expense. As has been before stated elsewhere, the traffic expenses of Canadian Railways are less than 2 per cent of the total. As a matter of fact, if the total expense of the traffic department could be cut in half on all Canadian Railways, the saving would not be within a million dollars of meeting the recent 8 1/2 per cent increase per hour for section forces' wages. While the economies by co-ordination made up of small items aggregate quite a large sum, yet compared with the general wage increase averaging more than 25 per man per month, which took effect throughout the year, the amount is negligible. The increase referred to is, it is hoped, the last of a series of advances of which the McCleod award was the main feature, with its many supplements. The result is that the average wage of railway employees in Canada has advanced from the pre-war wage of $700 per annum to $1,700 per annum.

P. E. I. FARMERS ARE ORGANIZING Three Agents of the United Farmers Busy

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Feb. 28.—The seed of the agrarian movement is being sown broadcast over the three counties of Prince Edward Island by three "hired men" of the United Farmers of the Province, and since eighty per cent. of the Islanders live by tilling the soil and raising stock, it is safe to say that it is falling on not unfruitful soil. The movement, unlike that spreading throughout other parts of the Dominion, is up to the present almost non-political in character and confines its attention pretty largely to economic problems, chief of which is the co-operative buying and selling proposition.

He was a green Scottish lad, and one of his duties was to answer the telephone. Who first called on to do so, in reply to the usual query: "Are you there?" he nodded assent. Again the question came, and again and yet again, and each time the boy gave the answering nod. When the question came for the fifth time, however, the boy, losing his temper, roared through the transmitter: "Man, are ye blin? I've been noddin' me head for the last half-oor."

"You look awfully tired, young man," said the benevolent looking woman to the young student with the books under his arm. "Yes, I'm studying for a doctor," replied the student. "It's a shame! Why don't you let the doctor study for himself?"

ment and so on. This work is not spectacular, but will be reflected in the operating statement at the end of the year. Work of this kind can only be undertaken on the assumption that the traffic will develop for which various sections of the National System were built, and, naturally, such development work may have to be discontinued, or postponed, when business conditions are depressed to the extent that these traffic possibilities seem remote. At the present time, the business outlook is too uncertain to justify any large expenditure for equipping the lines of the National System to handle large increases in traffic. With possibly one or two local situations excepted, the National System has a capacity above the traffic to be immediately handled. The monetary advantages of co-reasonable service. Action along these lines is sometimes opposed by local interests that consider they are unfairly affected, but the matter must be handled on lines of broad policy in the interest of the owners of the property, who are the Canadian people, represented by the Government of Canada. The management have every reason to believe that the public will appreciate the fact that the steps being taken to make ends meet are in the national interest, and that the campaign of retrenchment will have general support.

PULP WOOD SUPPLY OF CANADA ESTIMATED

An estimate of the supply of pulp-wood available in a single province of Canada—the province of Quebec—places the total at 350 million cords. This is part of forest resources which, according to The Dominion of Canada, a study by the Bankers' Trust Company, of New York, are the mainstay of the second most important Canadian industry, taking net value of output as the basis of comparison.

The latest available census of Canadian manufactures gives the value of log products in 1917 as $115,800,000 gross, $75,100,000 net; and of pulp and paper, $96,300,000 gross, $61,600,000 net. The total net value of forest products, $136,700,000, was 35 per cent greater than the net value of Canada's manufactured animal products, and about 45 per cent above the net value of her manufactured vegetable products. Manufacturers of metals alone exceeded in net value the output of forest products.

The United States is dependent upon Canada's forests for an important part of her supply of newsprint paper, and of wood pulp from which such paper is manufactured. In 1914, the United States imported about one-fifth of the paper consumed, while in 1915 the imports, chiefly from Canada, were about one-third of the consumption.

NOTABLE WEEK IN LOCAL DRAMATIC CIRCLES

THREE PERFORMANCES OF GRAND OPERA

San Carloans Will Open With "Aida" To-night

Three grand operas at the Royal Victoria Theatre this week—led by the appealing opera "Aida" opening to-night with Bettina Freeman in the title role.

This is one of the operas in which the San Carlo Opera Company shines brightest.

Another star whom music lovers will be keen to hear is the new tenor from Spain, Pileo Sinagra, who has just joined Fortune Gallo's company this season and will be heard in "Carmen" on Tuesday evening.

"Aida" furnishes a good example of the soundness of Fortune Gallo's policy of adhering closely to the repertoire of familiar operas, with the occasional interspersing of works that are comparative novelties. There is a little group of opera fans who constantly urge the production of music dramas which have not yet won their way with the public. But in opera it is the old familiar that are most enjoyed. No spirited performance of such pieces as "Carmen" and "Aida" ever sounds stale.

The San Carlo Company gives these immortal works with a spontaneity and a finish which can scarcely be duplicated by any company on this continent. As an evidence of this, Mr. Gallo states that the Verdi operas always play to packed houses, which such novelties are to draw only half a house.

Monday evening beautiful Bettina Freeman will be heard in "Aida," at the Tuesday matinee comes "Mme. Butterfly" with Anna Fitzu as Cho-

"The Passionate Pilgrim" a Splendid Feature Picture

One of the strongest feature pictures booked by Manager Robertson for the Dominion Theatre next week, is "The Passionate Pilgrim," a Cosmopolitan production bearing the Paramount production trade mark.

It is a dramatic story in which such popular screen favorites as Matt Moore, Rubye de Remer, Julia Swayne Gordon, Frankie Mann and Claire Whitney play the principal roles. The hero is a novelist and the heroine an invalid heiress whose estate is saved from a coterie of rascals by the hero. The situations are thrilling and there is a mild leaven of comedy in the development of the story.

age. When he was a boy in New England his parents' Summer home on the rocky coast was very near to a cave where, according to local gossip, a Spanish galleon was wrecked 300 years ago. The romance of the thing gripped him, and he spent many hours in this cave, reading "Treasure Island" and other stories of hidden gold. At one time he almost reached the point of running away to sea.

But when he grew up and became a famous actor, another ambition came to him. This was to play the leading roles in the great classic "Les Misérables" and "A Tale of Two Cities." This ambition he realized when William Fox produced these masterpieces on the screen. Then the dream of boyhood came back to him again.

"This is a great story for you, Mr. Farnum," said J. Gordon Edwards, the director, one day, running up to the star with the script of "The Joyous Troublemakers."

"Hidden treasure or nothing," said Farnum, who happened to be in the midst of a reverie on the long ago. "I want to play the boy who finds the gold."

"There's hidden treasure here, all right," said Edwards. "Read it and see how you like it."

Farnum took the story. Before he had read very far he saw that this was hidden treasure—but of a different sort from what he had expected. The gold was hidden by Nature, not by man; and at the bottom of a river him most was the fact that the person who found the treasure was a happy youth, fishing from a rock in the sun.

Farnum became so engrossed in the story that he forgot the cave on the Massachusetts coast, forgot the Spanish galleon, forgot "Treasure Island" itself.

"Great stuff," he said to Director Edwards. "This is better than Spanish gold." The galleon was wrecked 300 years ago, but this gold was hidden perhaps a million years ago. And what a love story this is!

Very soon a cast was assembled, and all were working hard on "The Joyous Troublemakers," with the charming Louise Lovely playing opposite M. Farnum.

PRINCESS PLAYERS IN COMEDY DRAMA

"What Money Could Not Buy" Will Be Next Offering

The next play to be produced at the Princess Theatre will be "What Money Couldn't Buy," a beautiful comedy-drama full of mystery and thrills, and a crook play with a rather unusual twist. It will please from start to finish.

At the first performance of this delightful play a large framed portrait of James Coots will be given as a prize in the guessing contest for "grown-ups." The prize will go to the one guessing nearest the correct number of words spoken by Miss Page in "The Cave Girl" last week.

There are many beautiful plays in preparation by the Mildred Page Players and several highly artistic productions of a musical nature. Watch for a favorite kind of plays, contents and the prizes. Watch for the pleased crowds who have formed the Princess "habit."

It's the best beautiful comedy-drama yet that beautiful comedy-drama "What Money Couldn't Buy," beginning Wednesday, March 2, at the Princess Theatre.

Alice Calhoun will have a highly emotional role in her forthcoming Vitaphone production now being made at the Brooklyn studio under the direction of George L. Sargent. This is in direct contrast to her characterization in "Princess Jones," which was light comedy.

Fenimore Cooper's Famous Masterpiece Now on Variety Screen

Aspirants to screen fame had best heed the words of Maurice Tourneur, famous French producer, whose new special picture, "The Last of the Mohicans," opens at the Variety Theatre to-day.

It is interesting to learn of the experience of the actors in this thrilling story of early American life, for they all had to endure a great deal to get the beautiful scenes and the exciting drama which marks this big picture.

Tourneur himself says, "Consider the life before you try to get in," and to illustrate he cites the seven weeks they spent in the big mountains and the daily grind at his studio.

For example, one Monday night the company toiled until two o'clock filming moonlight scenes. At six that morning the entire troupe left by motor for the hills, over 150 miles distant in the fastness of the mountains. There they remained the seven weeks, sleeping in wigwags, eating rough food, and living the rugged outdoor life as the redskins and early settlers did during the period in the famous Cooper book.

"It is no easy matter," said Miss Bedford, "to live this rough life. No baths, no hot water, no curling irons—no nothing!"

"Nothing to it," smiles Tourneur on location, as he orders a redskin scalped, "all in the day's work—if you want to work!"

SHIPWRECK SCENE SHOWN AT ROMANO

Great Interest Shown in Filming of "Should a Woman Tell"

The Pacific Coast village of Laguna was stirred with excitement over the presence of the Screen Classics, Inc., company that was filming night scenes of a shipwreck for the production of "Should a Woman Tell" according to the report brought back by David Thompson, Metro studio manager, upon his return to the studios in Hollywood from the beach location. This stirring drama of a soul in doubt is showing at the Romano Theatre to-day. Alice Lake, Jack Mulhall and Frank Currier head the all-star company that is picturing "Should a Woman Tell." This drama is from the pen of Finis Fox, of the Metro scenario staff, and is directed by John E. Ince. A company of one hundred players spent ten days at the Laguna location.

Mr. Thompson motored to Laguna to see how work was progressing and to offer whatever assistance he could to Director Ince. He found that the technical director, A. Morris Myers, had constructed a New England village street on the beach and a shipwreck on the rocks in the ocean, and that production was progressing without a hitch. The inhabitants of the village were greatly interested in the filming of the picture, especially in the spectacular shipwreck scenes.

Sol Polito is the motion photographer, and his work includes some wonderful "shots" of the wreck scenes and the ocean, according to members of the company. John Ince set out for Laguna immediately upon returning from a location trip to Santa Cruz Island. He will return to the studio for interiors, but will have more work to do at Laguna Beach later.

The all-star Screen Classics, Inc., production of "Should a Woman Tell" is under the personal supervision of Maxwell Karger, director-general.

Bringing with him an electric atmosphere, the man strode into the newspaper office and bandaged his stick on the counter. "Where's the editor?" he shouted, angrily. "He's—he's out," replied the clerk, nervously. "What has he done this time?" "In that advertisement for my valve-less motor," stormed the visitor, "he's turned the second 'v' into a 'u'!"

FAMOUS ENGLISH ACTOR TO VISIT

SIR JOHN MARTIN HARVEY

FAMOUS CREATION FOR TWO NIGHTS

Sir John Martin Harvey Will Play
"The Only Way" for Two Nights

Local playgoers will welcome the announcement that during Sir John Harvey's visit this week he is to present "The Only Way" which many have feared he was not going to present on his current Canadian tour.

The following brief resume of the history of "The Only Way" should prove interesting reading at this time. "The Only Way" was produced by Sir John Martin Harvey in February 1899 at the old Lyceum Theatre London, during Sir Henry Irving's regime, while the latter was touring the provinces. It was an instant success, and has now grown into a classic play. Its twenty-first birthday was celebrated last Winter at the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, during a revival of the play for this occasion.

Founded, of course, on Dickens's masterpiece "A Tale of Two Cities" it tells of the supreme sacrifice that Carton makes for the lady he loves, that her betrothed may live. "Greater love hath no man than this," is the theme of this immortal story, which will for ever have a great hold on humanity.

The play as well as the story are so well known, that little need be added, except that the brilliant comedy of the first act, the charming love tale of the second, the thrilling drama of the third scene, and the exquisite pathos of the last act, all tend to weave the whole into a really fine play.

Of Sir John Martin Harvey's part, it is only necessary to say it is world popular, one of the greatest performances of the last generation, a performance too that has never deteriorated, but is as clear-cut a cameo as it was twenty-two years ago. Miss N. de Silva will play her original part of "Mimi," which she has made equally her own.

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils
Relieves Head-Colds at Once.

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed and you can't breathe freely because of a cold or catarrh, just get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every air passage of your head, soothing and healing the inflamed, swollen mucous membrane and you get instant relief.

Ah! how good it feels. Your nostrils are open, your head is clear, no more hawking, snuffling, blowing; no more headache, dryness or struggling for breath. Ely's Cream Balm is just what sufferers from head colds and catarrh need. It's a delight.

Rotary Birthday
Nanaimo—With a dinner in the Great War Veterans' Hall, followed by a musical and speech-making programme, forty members of the Rotary Club celebrated, Friday evening, the sixteenth anniversary of the first club in Chicago. Mr. Oscar Olson, of the Vancouver Club, sketched the remarkable growth from four members to 65,000 and 800 clubs, and outlined the principles of the movement. Piano solos by Andrew Dunsmore, songs by Norman Carter, and Rotary choruses led by Ted Martin, formed the musical portion of the most successful of the year's gatherings of this young and vigorous club.

Automobile Accident
Qualicum Beach—While on his way to Coombs to hold his regular Sunday morning service, Rev. Mr. Dobbin met with a very painful and serious accident. Fearing that he might not reach his destination at the appointed time, he was driving his car a little faster than usual, and something went wrong with the steering gear and, as the road is very narrow, the car dashed against a stump. The car was very badly broken up and Mr. Dobbin sustained a number of injuries besides being rendered unconscious. Medical aid was at once summoned, but how serious his wounds are have not yet been ascertained. We all hope for a speedy recovery.

Twins Passed Away
Ladysmith—The death occurred at Extension of Gladys and Grace Dobbs aged one month, twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. James Dobbs. The funeral of the little ones was held in Ladysmith on Saturday, Rev. Mr. Reid officiating.

Scored Social Success
Nanaimo—Upwards of one hundred and twenty couples were in attendance at the annual ball of the Nanaimo Elks held Thursday night, the affair being one of the greatest, if not the greatest social success of the season.

The committee in charge of the arrangements had left no stone unturned to make the function one long to be remembered, and all who attended voted it a most successful affair. The Oddfellows' Hall was decorated splendidly for the occasion. The decorations represented a forest scene, cedar and arbutus being the predominant foliage. Mounted specimens of the heads of elk, deer, bear and other animals completed the scene, which was a work of art.

A most enjoyable selection of dance music was supplied by Professor Jensen's special orchestra of nine pieces, the members of which were garbed in classy uniforms, while the supper was splendid, being furnished by Mrs. Gordon, of the Lotus Hotel, under the direction of J. R. McKinnell.

A DREAM PALACE

In "The Correspondent," the Vitagraph picture, with Corinne Griffith as the star, there will be a scene which will not be shown much more than a minute on the screen, but which took nearly two weeks to get ready to photograph. It represents a dream-palace of the heroine, and as dreams usually are rather extravagant, the settings had to be very large and very magnificent. A large court, bordered by marble pillars, is seen, and in the centre there is an

ARGENTINA ESCAPED

Wealth of Country Won From Soil; Conditions Now Favorable

Immediately prior to and since the termination of the World War Argentina has enjoyed an era of exceptional prosperity, and its foreign trade has been buoyant and active.

Few Bankruptcies

The export situation is not as buoyant as formerly, due to lack of demand from abroad, but nevertheless there is no evidence of any serious setback, and most business men regard the stringency in exports as purely temporary.

RECORD WHEAT EXPORTS.

During the year just passed Argentine grain exports reached a record figure, and so great was the demand for wheat and flour that in order to retain in the country a sufficient quantity of wheat for domestic consumption, pending the 1920-21 harvest, the Government, in August, prohibited the further export of wheat and wheat-products.

Wheat, Linned and Oats.

The Director General of Statistics, whose department is generally conceded to be highly efficient, has just issued a report on the Government's estimates of the areas sown this year under wheat, linned and oats.

Change Crops

As in other countries, the Argentine farmers swing over from one crop to another, according to their judgment as to which particular grain may be in most demand.
